

Cabin Fever? You are ~~not~~ Alone. Think About this!

Currently we are experiencing a world wide crisis due to the Covid-19 coronavirus Pandemic.

Our elected leaders have been constantly emphasizing the vital importance of people staying inside their homes (self-isolating and self-quarantining) in order to contain, slow down and stop the spread of this deadly virus. It was initially recommended that people stay in for a period of 14 days to help flatten the curve of the virus.

However, people, especially younger people, are having so much trouble staying in their own homes that governors through-out the country have now issued executive orders (IAW) to save lives. Even celebrities, stars and other millionaires are finding it difficult to stay in their large spacious homes and estates even though they are with their families.
